Dear Parent/Guardian,

My name is Matthew McGuffie, and I am the Clarinet and Saxophone teacher at Froebelian School.

I am a freelance professional musician and examiner (ABRSM) with over twenty-five years' experience. I strongly believe in the importance of music education and the huge benefits it can give children of all ages. In lesson pupils will learn to read music notation and play a variety of different styles of music as they develop their technique. I encourage pupils (if they wish) to take graded examinations to help them progress and receive recognition for their achievement.

To start learning the Clarinet or Saxophone, your child would need an instrument. Instruments can be rented or bought at various local music shops, and I am happy to help guide you if necessary.

Lessons take place weekly in school and your child would receive 30 lessons during the academic year. I invoice parents at the start of each term, and the cost for 2023-2024 is £19 per thirty-minute lesson. Tutor books will need to be purchased periodically.

Please contact me if you are interested in lessons or have any queries.

Kind regards

Matthew McGuffie BMus (Hons)
